State Must Move Soon on Fire Sprinkler Regs for Older Buildings

Monday, August 11, 2008 - Millennium Radio

Many Jersey high-rise residential buildings lack fire sprinkler protection, and the clock is ticking.

The New Jersey Fire Sprinkler Advisory Board is urging the State Community Affairs Department to make a decision on the sprinklers, which need to be retrofitted into high-rise units built before 1988. Executive Director Vinny Fichera says the Advisory Board's position is that creates a dangerous situation for people who live in high rise buildings.

It is estimated there are as many as 500 such buildings unprotected by sprinklers. The D-C-A has 40 days to decide on adopting regulations for the older buildings, including how they will finance the instalation.
